Billings, Mont., July 2.—This city is filled with thousands of visitors, who are here for the drawing of the Crown Indian Reservation lands, which began today. The land which has been thrown open to settlement lies across the Yellowstone south of this place, and is somewhat more than one-third of the entire acreage of the northern part of the reservation. It contains about one and a quarter millions of acres, and is the largest cession of Indian lands ever made by the government. Of this tract about 200,000 acres can easily be cultivated. For this purpose the government has made surveys of four irrigation projects on this portion of the tract. The irrigated land is estimated to be worth $75 to $125 an acre. It is interesting to note that this is the first land to be disposed of under the national irrigation law.

SILVER JUBILEE OF FR. GOEBEL

WILL BE CELEBRATED AT ST. MARY'S CHURCH TOMORROW.

SOLEMN HIGH MASS AT 10:30

Banquet For Visiting Clergy, and Others At Noon—Reception of Congregation Members.
To honor the twenty-fifth anniversary of the day on which Rev. W. A. Goebel said his first mass, the congregation of St. Mary's Roman Catholic church has planned a jubilee celebration for tomorrow, July 3. A fitting program has been arranged, the preparations having been under way for the past two weeks. The preliminary plans were settled upon when Fr. Goebel was in Ohio, where he has been since his graduation from the latter named institution was in 1881 and at that time and there he was ordained a priest. Mr. Goebel said his first mass at Marietta, Ohio on July 3 of the same year, the ceremony being similar to that which he performed with Fr. O'Neill two Sundays ago. Mr. Goebel's first charge was at Kingston, Wis. During the two years he remained there he raised the debt of the church and its missions. After making some improvements he was sent to Ripon, where a similar undertaking was awaiting him. The financial condition of that church had been most wretched for years and it was a prodigious labor that lay before him. Nevertheless the overhanging cloud was soon removed. For fifteen years Mr. Goebel was at the head of this parish and attended its missions, which demanded many and long drives. Then in September of 1898 he came to Janesville, succeeding Fr. Roach in St. Mary's parish. Fr. Roach going to Milwaukee. Fr. Goebel was largely instrumental in establishing St.

REV. W. A. GOEBEL

determined to commemorate the event very quietly, saying mass with a newly ordained priest, Rev. J. O'Neill, in his old home town, Marietta. The matter of the celebration here was kept secret from him until a few days ago.

Mass Banquet Reception.
Tomorrow's exercises consist of solemn high mass, a banquet and a reception to all members of St. Mary's congregation. Mass will be said in the church at ten-thirty, with Rev. W. A. Goebel as celebrant; Rev. T. A. Goebel, youngest brother of the Janesville rector, who is located at Woodsfield, Ohio, as deacon; Rev. J. O'Neill of Marietta as sub-deacon; J. Bourgmeyer of Kilbourne as master of ceremonies and Rev. F. H. Synder of Milwaukee as thurifer. The Very Rev. L. W. Muthane of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, will preach the sermon.

Banquet For A Hundred.
The banquet will be served in St. Mary's hall at half past twelve o'clock. Small tables will be spread for one hundred, the guests being the visiting clergymen, the officers of St. Mary's church, the officers of the different men's societies connected with the church, Mayor J. P. Hutchinson and a few other local friends of Mr. Goebel. Following the repast there will be a brief but splendid program. The toasts, of course, will be to Fr. Goebel and the speakers are to be representatives of the out of town visitors, of the church organization and of the societies.

Many To Be Received.
From two o'clock in the afternoon until nine in the evening the reception will be held at the home of Fr. Goebel. All members of the congregation are given an invitation. Hundreds of printed cards have been issued and the committee in charge has worked laboriously to reach every member.

St. Mary's interior has been beautifully decorated for the occasion. A wealth of ferns, field daisies, brown-eyed susans, and other wild flowers and potted plants has been used in the scheme of beautification and the church could hardly present a more beautiful sight, the foliage serving to set off the architectural and artistic features of the edifice.

Biographical Sketch.
Rev. W. A. Goebel is past forty-eight years of age and was born in Marietta, Ohio, the native home of his mother. In the college at this place, the oldest town in the state, he received the first part of his higher education. This was completed in St. Michael's college at Toronto, Canada, and in St. Francis Seminary, Milwaukee.

FREE YOURSELF FROM THE PAST

IN STARTING TO LIVE A NEW LIFE.

REV. J. H. TIPPETT'S SERMON

Continuing in Sin One Dies a Spiritual Death From Which There is No Resurrection.

Rev. J. H. Tippett of the Central M. E. church yesterday morning took for his theme "Emanation From the Past." His text was from II Peter 1:9 and he said in part: As soon as ever a man seriously thinks of living a new life, living life on a higher plane, he is immediately met with the fact that the past is a great enemy which chills, entangles and paralyzes. The first thing you may see about a man seeking to change his life, to live on an upper plane, is the condemnation of the past. As soon as we think of better things the conscience urges against us that solemn fact that first of all God requires that which is past.

The Reality Of Sin.

The moment a man thinks of living a better life he is a serious man, and the first thing that comes to a serious man is consciousness of the reality of sin. In the old days of out superstition before our days of profound thought we recognized in sin little more than a phrase. Some think of sin as the wrath of God against the unrighteous and the sentence that has been pronounced against the transgressor is much more of a form than of a reality. Many people in these times say, it is in the constitution of things. In the physical universe there are laws and workings which bring about earthquakes, volcanoes, blizzards, and we are told that there are similar laws operative in humanity which in his desire for money and his own selfish needs performs deeds of passion and murder, but in both instances it is nature, and nature is another word for necessity what people call fate is generally nothing more or less than their foolishness and stupidity. Sin does not arise out of our nature; it is the contradiction of nature. There is a whole world of difference between the law that creates a blizzard or an earthquake, and the passion of a man that brings him into acts of violence and wickedness.

Don't Blame Society.

Society is not to blame for your sin. It may tempt us, but at least a man's sins are the result of his own carelessness and foolishness. Sin is not a disease we inherit it is an insanity. Do not blame your sins on your onerous life for if you do your posterity will blame theirs on you. There is a germ of freedom in every man, by which he can rise up and set at defiance every corpse in the cemetery and every soul in Hades. The day a man realizes his personality and his personal faults and condemnation is a sad day, but it is the beginning of all good days. A great change takes place when the man begins to realize that sin, liability to punishment, sentence of death is a reality.

We See The Imperfections.

The older we get the more conscious we become of the imperfection of life, and the more the pride of past years becomes to us a serious and depressing consideration. A miracle has been worked and proven by the Christian Church that there is such a thing as forgiveness. What chills a man's enthusiasm for better things more than the reminiscences of other days? What we want is to believe noble things of God and not feel that we are shadowed by secret detectives. As soon as a man begins to think of better things he becomes conscious of the wild and morbid elements of his nature. We need not ask where they came from, the man of science dates them to the gorilla.

A serious man, as soon as he begins to think of a wiser and nobler life, is met by the fact that there are within him irrational, morbid destructive elements. Thousands of people think that at the bottom of all wrong doing lies in bad feeling, and that if we only ate the proper kind of food that would have a great deal to do with our moral wholesomeness and perfection.

Set Work Right.

A wise man never knew how much was wrong with him until he began to set things right. That is the time when a man really measures the disorder of his nature. Man is himself a theatre of painful impulses, predispositions, passions, affections, appetites—what is to be done in that day. Natural man is a menagerie and the scientist tells us that a man's heart is a dark forest, where wild beasts roam, and where they hiss and snarl and scream and bite. He says they came out of these primordial forests in your ancestral days and they are the survival of the animal, of your origin. We do not deny this fact that the wild passions are there, but by the grace of Jesus Christ they are softened and saved and a man's life is made noble and peaceful. If you want to live another and better life, and you are paralyzed by the indwelling evil, call in your Master.

Break Away From Habits.

Habit often gets hold of men and when they try to let it alone it is next to impossible. Break away from the past and live a new life. A grand life is possible to every man in this place—new, sweet, pure. Sin may condemn you to the asylum, but you, a victim of irrationality, the saddest of mad-men, for the insanity of the soul is infinitely more terrible than any blackness of the brain. Sin sends men to prisons, but its more terrible vengeance is expressed in the fact that it converts your own personality into a prison, the iron enters into the soul, the revolving planet becomes a treadmill. The wages of sin is death, but the death we ought most to dread is not the death of feet, hands, and eyes; the death of purity, the death of peace, the death of honor; the death of hope, the extinction of the life of God within.

WILL INVESTIGATE RENTING OF FARMS

State University Professor to Study Tenure of Farm Land in Southern Wisconsin.

Madison, Wis., June 30.—A study of the cause of the rapid increase of farming, on rented land and of the best methods of renting farm land is to be made during the present summer under the direction of the University of Wisconsin by Professor H. C. Taylor of the department of political economy. This investigation is to be undertaken because it has been found that the number of tenant farmers has increased so rapidly in recent years that now more than one-fourth of the farmers of southern Wisconsin are renters. It is important that the investigation should be undertaken by the state, for the reason that there is no permanent landlord class. Most of the landlords are retired farmers who, by hard work and careful saving, have managed to become the owners of good farms from which they have a right to expect a fair income in their old age. The tenant farmers, as a rule, are young men who are just getting a start, but who, if they have energy and opportunity, will in many instances become the owners of the farms. The importance of a proper adjustment of relations between these two classes so that the land may be well farmed to the benefit of the owner, the tenant, and the state, is evident.

Purpose of Investigation

The purpose of the investigation is twofold: first, to ascertain the cause of the increase of the tenant class; and second, to make a study of the best methods of renting land. Out of the 20,000 men who own farms which they rent to tenants, it is believed that a large number will be found who have given considerable thought to the best methods of letting land. By bringing together the experience of the many, it will be possible to prepare a report on land tenure in Wisconsin which will doubtless be of great interest and value to a large number of men who have little experience in renting land.

Information First Hand

In order to get as complete and accurate information as possible concerning the conditions, Professor Taylor, during the next three months, will visit farmers in all the counties of southern Wisconsin. He has arranged trips through Iowa, LaFayette, Green, Rock, Walworth, Kenosha, Racine, Milwaukee, Waukesha, Jefferson, Dodge, and Ozaukee counties. He desires to meet all farmers of these counties who are interested in the renting of land, and will call upon all those who, by sending their names and addresses, indicate their desire to furnish information. Dr. Taylor has been studying the subject of land tenure both in Europe and America, and has recently published a monograph on "The Decline of Land Owning Farmers in England." The results of the present investigation of farm land tenure in southern Wisconsin will be published as soon as the material can be compiled.

VARSITY PROFESSOR CALLED TO CAPITOL

Dr. F. W. Meisner of German Department Leaves Wisconsin for University of Washington.

Madison, Wis., July 2.—Dr. Frederick William Meisner of the German department at the University of Wisconsin has resigned his position to become the head of the German department at the University of Washington in Seattle, where he will have charge of literature. Dr. Meisner, whose home was in Manitowish county, is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, of the class of 1893, and received the degree of doctor of philosophy from the same institution in 1904, after a year's study at the University of Leipzig, Germany. He is the editor of a recent text-book on "Scientific German," and author of several important papers embodying the results of original investigation in the field of German literature, including his recent discovery of the source of a German drama by Christian Felix Weisner.

The appointment of Dr. Meisner at Washington university is an indication of the increasing faith which eastern universities and colleges have in the men trained at the University of Wisconsin. He will be the fifth Wisconsin man on the faculty at the University of Washington. Dean A. R. Priest of the college of liberal arts was a member of the faculty of the University of Wisconsin in 1898; M. L. Dager, assistant professor of oratory and rhetoric, held a similar position at Wisconsin in 1902; Carl E. Magnusson, Wisconsin '09, holds a professorship in electrical engineering; and Dr. I. W. Brunel, Wisconsin '09, is professor of pharmacology.

Dr. Meisner will complete his work in the university summer session, and will then leave Madison for Seattle, entering upon his new work Sept. 1.

For the sixth time this season the Red Sox went down to defeat yesterday, and the loss was due entirely to errors. The Clinton Maroons, their opponents, earned three runs and took five on errors. The Sox were able to reach the home plate but three times. Pitcher Clarke worked hard at times, but did not live up to his reputation and with support poorer than usual was unable to hold down the visitors. The Maroons had many of their old-time players of the professional class.

At Rockford Score Was 9 and 8

The Janesville Eagles played a social game with their Rockford brothers at Rockford yesterday afternoon. The contest was not an exhibition of high-class ball, but furnished the players and spectators an immense amount of amusement. The Bower City boys had a clutch on victory up to the last of the eighth inning, having scored seven times to the three of the Forest City players. Then Rockford braced and five more rallies were made. It looked bad for the visitors, but in the opening of the ninth Connors, who was first up, nailed out a two-bagger. Birmingham followed and lined out a high one far over the center-fielder. The ball was lost and Birmingham came in for a

Black Hawks and Fourth Ward Lions

The Black Hawks defeated the Fourth Ward Lions yesterday for the second time. In spite of the fact that the game started in the rain there were over a hundred people on the ground to witness the contest. In the first game the Hawks won by a small score and the Lions were anxious to play the return game. The game was a tie the greater part of the time, but at the beginning of the eighth inning the Hawks made a score, placing the tally at 6 and 5. The crowd yelled as the Lions went to bat, but by good pitching Wheelock won the day by allowing two small grounders, the latter of which he sent to second for a double play. The next man up to bat failed to make first. James McGee muffed the game and apparently satisfied everybody. The line-up:

Knipschield and Auld were the Harmony battery and Dickerson and Kehoe held the big places on the Rock team. W. Fanning, manager of the Harmony team, has arranged for a challenge game to be played next Sunday at the Sloane farm.

FOR EXTERMINATING MUSTARD OF FARMS

Experiment Station at University Finds Method of Killing Pest—Tests for Eradicating Thistles.

Madison, Wis., July 2.—The success of experiments for the eradication of mustard from farm lands which are being made for the Wisconsin experiment station by Prof. R. A. Moore, professor of agronomy at the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin, will mean much to the agricultural interests of the state. Wild mustard has become a source of much annoyance and loss to farmers, and many methods for its extermination have been tried and abandoned, because they were inefficient, injured grain crops, poisoned stock, or were too expensive. Sulphate of iron, which is used in solution by Prof. Moore in his experiments, is cheap, costing but $7 or $8 per ton, which amount will cover twenty acres effectively. Though it kills the mustard, it applied before the plant comes to full bloom, it has no ill effect upon grain crops nor are stock coming in contact with it poisoned as by many other solutions similarly used.

May Kill Thistles

Hundreds of square miles of farming land in the state which otherwise would be the finest agricultural land in Wisconsin, are covered with mustard, said Prof. Moore, discussing the experiments. "A sprayer of German make has recently been shipped to the college for use in this investigation, and I believe it will mean the redemption of much land now infested with noxious weeds. Canada thistles, I believe, can eventually be killed off too, but as they are perennial, sending up new heads from the root, they must be treated several times during successive seasons. Experiments along this line are now being carried on by the station, but definite results can not be obtained until another year shows whether the thistle roots are killed, as we hope, by the frequent blighting of the tops.

"The new spray is twenty-two feet wide, and can be used as fast as a horse can travel through the grain field, so that twenty or twenty-five acres can be covered in a day. A twenty per cent solution of 100 pounds of iron sulphate crystals in a fifty-two gallon barrel, stirred well, was used with excellent results in demonstration tests in Dane, Waukesha, and Kenosha counties recently. Similar tests will be made next year in portions of the state not visited this year.

WATERTOWN PICNIC WAS MUCH ENJOYED

United Commercial Travelers Had an Enjoyable Outing on Saturday Last—Won Ball Game.

Members of the local council of the United Commercial Travelers report an excellent time at the picnic in Watertown Saturday. A special car was attached to the train which leaves here at 8:20 and about sixty left here. Seventeen more went from Port Atkinson and when the train arrived in Watertown there were about one hundred in all. They were met at the depot by the Watertown committee and escorted to Tivoli island. Carriages conveyed the ladies and the procession was headed by Thacker's Concert band. A program was carried out, consisting of speeches by the leading men and music. The response to the welcoming address made by the mayor, Mr. G. A. Spoon of this city gave some very well-chosen remarks in which he invited these present to a similar meeting which will be held here the Saturday before the 4th next year. Among other amusements was a ball game in which the team from here defeated the Watertown nine by a score of 12 to 1 in a two-inning game. The gathering was in full swing for the members and their invited guests and a jolly good time was had by all.

By the quick action of Marshal William Appleby, Rev. W. A. Goebel of St. Mary's church and his niece, Ursula Goebel of Marietta, Ohio, were saved from serious injury in a runaway accident Saturday afternoon. Fr. Goebel was driving up North Franklin street to make a sick call in the first ward when he met the steam roller and his horse became frightened. The animal reared and plunged and as Fr. Goebel endeavored to hold the horse down one line broke from the bridle. Chief Appleby was in the buggy and, jumping, caught the animal before it could start on a run, preventing what might have been a terrible accident. As it was Fr. Goebel, wrenched his right ankle which he sprained some time ago and it was with much difficulty that he performed the usual Sabbath services yesterday.

Right Paint at the Start

Pure White Lead and Pure Linseed Oil should always be used for the first or priming coat. No other paint has the same affinity for the surface—marrying and becoming a part of the wood.

Yellow ochre, barytes, zinc or any other substance than Pure White Lead fails to unite with the wood and serves only to form a cushion, which will prevent even Pure White Lead from attaching itself when finally applied.

Satisfactory results can never be obtained so long as a surface is coated with a generating (for that is all it is) of yellow ochre, barytes, zinc, etc. Such a coating is bound to crumble, or peel, and must be scraped or scraped off, before a good job can be done—an expensive process, and not without danger of fire.

A house owner can scarcely make a more costly mistake than to use a substitute for Pure White Lead in the priming coat. Avoid all risk by using

NEGRO LYNCHED AND BODY BURNED

MOB AVENGES ASSAULT ON GIRL NEAR WOMACK, I. T.

HE PRAYS TO BE FORGIVEN

Confesses Guilt When Brought Face to Face with Young Victim and Crowd Makes Short Work of Brute.

Chickasha, I. T., July 2.—A negro who committed a criminal assault upon the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. Robertson, near Womack, was captured Saturday night and, after being taken back to the scene of his crime, was hanged and burned near the spot where he committed the crime.

He confessed his crime and offered no resistance to the mob.

To one person the negro gave his name as Cliff Mays, of Marshall, Tex., and he told another that it was Will Newbright, of San Antonio.

By the time the negro was overtaken near Bradley fully 400 men had joined in the chase, and soon after the capture the march to Womack began.

It was nearly three o'clock Sunday morning when the Robertson home was reached and the negro was brought before the assaulted girl.

Admits the Crime.

"That's the one," said she at once, and the negro replied, "Yes, lady, I'm the one. Gentlemen, I admit the crime."

The mob then proceeded with their victim past the spot where he had committed his crime, and to a tree in the road on the bank of Walnut creek, where a rope was thrown over a limb about 18 feet high and the other end knotted about the man's neck.

He was given an opportunity to speak and again he confessed his guilt, and, after a fervent prayer to God for forgiveness, he was drawn into the air to die by strangulation.

Placed Upon the Pyre.

Before life was extinct the body was lowered to the ground, logs and brush were heaped upon it, and the mass ignited. For a moment the body writhed, a few groans were heard and the flames completed their work.

Two hours later the charred body was buried under the same tree, under direction of a deputy marshal from Purcell, who had been deputed in his effort to take the negro from the mob.

Miss Robertson's condition is not serious.

S.S.S. CANCEROUS ULCERS

Whenever a sore or ulcer is slow in healing, and shows signs of eating into the surrounding flesh, it is safe to say that the blood is infected with cancerous germs. Some old taint or poison that has lain dormant awaiting a favorable opportunity to assert itself has found an outlet on the face, arms, legs or other part of the body, and the place has become inflamed and festering, and a chronic ulcer is the result. When middle age is reached or passed, and the vital powers are naturally weaker, a hurt of any kind heals slowly, and often an insignificant scratch or bruise on warty growths, moles, pimples, etc., will begin to inflame and are soon large, eating ulcers. The cancerous germs are rooted in the blood, and while salves, plasters, lotions, etc., keep the surface clean, they are useless in affecting a cure. S.S.S. cures cancerous ulcers by going down into the blood and removing the germs and poisonous matter, and when the cause is removed the sore heals permanently. S. S. S. enriches and strengthens the entire blood supply, and being purely vegetable, it is a pleasant, safe remedy for young or old, and ulcers of every kind yield promptly to its curative properties. AUTOMOBILES.
More than 4 million dollars' worth of automobiles were brought into the country during the fiscal year which ended with last week, and more than 3 million dollars' worth exported during the same time. Figures of our foreign commerce in automobiles, as announced by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics, show the value of automobiles imported, in the eleven months ending with May to have been $3,502,244, and of parts thereof, $378,389, while exports thereof during the same months amounted to $2,957,748. It is apparent, therefore, that the figures for the full fiscal year which ends with Saturday of this week will show more than 4 million dollars' worth of automobiles and parts thereof imported and more than 3 million dollars' worth exported.

Meantime the manufacture of automobiles in the United States has amounted to presumably more than 26 millions of dollars, since the Bureau of the Census has recently issued a preliminary statement which shows the value of automobiles manufactured in the United States in 1905 at $26,645,064. This figure includes amounts received for custom work and repairing and value of products other than automobiles; but, as it does not include automobiles, valued at $379,205, manufactured in establishments engaged primarily in the manufacture of other products, it may probably be safely set down that the value of automobiles produced in the United States approximates 26 millions of dollars and the imports 4 millions, and that out of this total of 30 million dollars there was exported about 8 million dollars' worth.

The rapid increase in the use of automobiles is shown in a marked degree both by the figures of the Bureau of Statistics and those of the Bureau of the Census. The value of automobiles manufactured in 1900 is given by the census figures at only $4,748,011 and in 1905, as above indicated, at $26,645,064. The Bureau of Statistics figures will show approximately 4 million dollars' worth of automobiles imported in the fiscal year 1906, against less than 2½ millions in 1905, about 1½ millions in 1904, and about 1 million in 1903.

Of the 3 million dollars' worth of automobiles exported in the fiscal year just ending, about one-half goes to Europe and most of the remainder to Canada, Mexico, the West Indies, and Australia. The details of distribution have only been worked out for ten months of the present year, but they show the value exported to the United Kingdom at $616,177; to Canada, $435,850; to Mexico, $293,002; to Italy, $227,588; to West Indies and Bermuda, $224,676; to France, $170,601; to Australia and New Zealand, $148,124; to South America, $61,730; to Germany, $57,250; to British East Indies, $31,046; and to Africa, $26,925. Of the imports, fully two-thirds came from France and practically all of the remainder from the United Kingdom, Germany, and Italy, in about equal proportions.

The industrial effect in the United States of the increased use of automobiles (while it can not be fully measured because of the large number of people employed in their care, repair, etc.) is indicated in some degree by the figures of the census, which show that the number of wage-earners in the automobile manufacturing establishments of the country increased from 2,242 in 1900 to 10,239 in 1905; that the wages paid increased from $1,320,958 to $6,178,950; the salaries of officials, clerks, etc., from $294,700 to $1,009,425; and that the material used, which of course largely represent labor, increased from $1,804,287 to $14,668,138.

The importance of the automobile propelled vehicle in its relation to the commercial and industrial development of the undeveloped sections of the world is suggested by a study of the figures of exports of automobiles of the various countries and continents. Lack of transporting power, whether in the form of horses, canals, or railways has been one of the greatest obstacles in attempts to develop the mountain, desert, and tropical regions of the world, and the fact that the automobile will built primarily for passenger transportation or transportation of freight, is being rapidly adopted in those regions in which animal power is scarce suggests great possibilities in production and commerce through the use of vehicles of this character.

Reports from United States consuls and others have shown the practical application of automatically propelled vehicles in many of the comparatively undeveloped countries, especially in the Tropics, including Mexico, the West India Islands, South America, Africa, India, the Malay peninsula, Java, China, Japan, and the Philippine Islands, all of them sections in which animal power for transportation is extremely scarce and development delayed by reason of that scarcity. The proportionately large exportation of automobiles to sections of this character is a suggestion of the practical uses apparently being made in those countries of this class of vehicles. About 20 per cent of the automobiles exported from the United States in the year just closing went to Mexico and the West Indies, while only about 7 per cent of the other exports went to those countries.

The export trade in automobiles has advanced rapidly in recent years and suggests a probably rapid growth in the near future. The total value of automobiles exported from the United States in the ten months ending with April, 1906, was $2,473,207, against $1,876,063 in the corresponding months of 1905 and $1,542,535 in the corresponding months of 1904, and thus indicates that the automobile may take the place in our export trade of bicycles, of which the exportation has fallen from $7,005,323 in 1897 to $1,378,428 in 1905. The exports of automobiles from France were, in round terms, 10 million dollars' value in 1903 and 20 millions in 1905.

Congress has certainly done a good bit of handing out money at the beck and call of different constituents.

Mr. Cooper will not care to repeat his experience of last Friday with congress again in a hurry. Few men are disgraced as openly and as publicly as he was.

Milwaukee's project for a grand hall where big conventions can be held will benefit the entire state and is being endorsed by the Milwaukee people pretty generally with cash contributions.

The Beloit Free Press forgets the planks of the republican national party for several years past when he calls Nolan's platform as populist. But the postoffice job looks bigger than political planks anyway.

The Milwaukee Journal still says real mean things about people it does not like. Take the Journal and Free Press and shake them up in a bag and the two would come out about even.

PRESS COMMENT.

Great Is Humbug.
Whitewater Register: Now that Secretary of State Houser is held to answer to the charge of attempted bribery we can think of only two members of the "reform" administration who have not been implicated in grafting or other crooked work, and Governor Davidson is one of the two. And these are the fellows who rode into office claiming that they were purer than any one else and wanted a chance to give the people their rights and to put down the corporations and monopolists who were oppressing them! Great is humbug.

British Ideas Of Art.
Madison Journal: Henry Hess, the "artist" believes Madison people have british ideas of art. He objects to having a lively stable on one side and a brewery on the other. In a communication to this paper says: "Such ignorance is nowhere outside of Madison. A horse barn or lively stable is a nuisance wherever built near a residence or any buildings occupied by people. As an earthquake is predicted for this city there is no use of building anyway."

Government Red Tape.
Evening Wisconsin: Resident of Willowhatch Beach, opposite Fortress Monroe, were recently terror stricken by the discovery that shells from the big guns in the fort were peppering their lawns. They complained to the War Department, which has notified the military secretary, who will send to the commander of the Atlantic division, who in turn will transmit the complaint to Gen. Grant, commanding the Department of the East, who will finally confront Gen. Potts, commander of Fortress Monroe, and ask him to explain. Meanwhile, the Colonel will have read the daily papers and plugged up his big guns temporarily.

The President's Traveling Expenses.
La Crosse Leader-Press: Congress has provided for the payment of the president's traveling expenses out of the public treasury, which it ought to have done long ago. Heretofore, when the president has gone on a trip, he has been obliged to accept free transportation from the railway companies and do that which, were he the governor of Wisconsin, would render him liable to prosecution. There are reasons which ought to be apparent to all why the president cannot be expected to pay his traveling expenses out of his private means. In effect, he takes the government with him. He cannot get away from the public business. He must have his private secretary and a couple of stenographers at his side. He needs several detectives for protection against lurking anarchists. Some presidents could not afford trips under such circumstances; none of them ought to be expected to use their own funds for such purposes.

Utter Incompetence Of O'Dea.
La Crosse Tribune: Again there has been an expensive demonstration of the utter uselessness of Andy O'Dea to coach a university crew. Wisconsin landed at the bottom of the heap at Poughkeepsie Saturday as precisely as though things had been planned to that end.

There are not more than a dozen men in Wisconsin who do not remember with pride the great race rowed by the McConville crew—the only winning crew ever turned out in our state university, and there are but the few referred to who do not recall with regret and shame for our leading institutions the fact that at the conclusion of that race, Mr. McConville was released and his lace given to a favorite who had never done anything and is incapable of doing anything to justify his retention as assistant to a real live coach.

It was a good thing for Mr. McConville in a business way, that he was released and permitted to devote his energies to a business career. He dislikes all public reference to the incident in his college years, that marks the blackest spot in Wisconsin University athletics. But one cannot see, year after year, the wanton waste of money lavished upon a forlorn hope of a crew, by which those responsible for the McConville O'Dea atrocity hope to permit their proteges to scratch a winning in order to justify their most reprehensible conduct, without a recurrence of the thought that Fortune is giving a certain clique a square deal.

The fates are kind to deserving people, but on top of the woeful incompetence of O'Dea the public reads in this long line of defeats the indictment of those who wronged a capable man in order to tender his laurels to a most indifferent athlete. Fate has decreed that Wisconsin shall never win an intercollegiate boat race while Andy O'Dea is retained as coach at the state university.

MAKING OVER A MOUNTAIN.
Helena, Objecting to Great Big Bald Hill, Will Make Park of It.

The strangest and most interesting park project ever undertaken in the United States is to be found at Helena, Mont., writes John H. Raftery in The Technical World Magazine, for July, where the citizens are engaged in transforming the bald slopes of a conical mountain which towers nearly 1400 feet above the city into a forest park.

There is no spring, well, brook or pond upon the bare sides or rocky summits of this singular park, nor will it be possible to raise water from the valley for the irrigation of trees, shrubs and flowers, yet the expert foresters of the federal bureau who spent last summer planning for the planting of the park are agreed that several varieties of evergreen trees will flourish there without water or attendance.

A spiral footpath has been graded from the city to the summit of Mount Helena, and there an ornate pavilion has been erected upon the highest point of rock, 1400 feet above the main street. In the cliffs of the peak there are two spacious natural caves, which will be tenanted by specimens of the native bears, lions and other carnivora of these mountains.

Parks including herds of deer, antelope, moose, elk and buffalo will be added as the present limits of the tract are extended upon the desert lands which lie back of the mountain.

NEW WAY TO DUPE FARMERS
Well-Dressed Man and Weary Willie Work Confidence Scheme.

A clever new confidence game is being worked in Lancaster county, Pa., and the operators have found not a few victims, says a Lancaster (Pa.) correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger. A well-dressed man stops at a farmhouse and declares that he has lost a valuable diamond pin in the roadway, and all make a search.

Nothing is found, but before leaving the stranger says he will return and if the pin is found will give a reward of $150 for its return. A few days later a tramp turns up with a pin, presumably a diamond, which he says he found. The farmer usually takes the bait and gets the pin for $20 or $25, expecting to get $150 as his reward.

After vainly waiting for the loser he learns from some jeweler that the pin is worthless.

Food of the Future.
The prophets foretell a great change in the food of a few generations hence compared with the viands of today. As population grows we may tend to become vegetarians, nuttists, and fruitarians if for no other reason than that double the land is required to sustain one man on meat than on wheat, says the Chicago Tribune. The time is approaching when the human race will perhaps live far more largely on the fruits of trees. An acre of banana plantation will feed twenty-five human beings, while a potato field of the same size would support only two and a wheat farm only one. A grove of full grown chestnut trees will yield six times as much nourishment per acre as any cereal crop. With the reclaiming of desert areas date, palm, banana and other fruit trees will result in a vast supply of food which will represent mankind's horn of plenty.

Norwegian Moss.
Prof. Hansteen, of the agricultural school at Aas, Norway, finds that a greenish-white moss common in that country can be converted into delicious and nutritious food by being subjected to a chemical process, compressed and cooked. He says that nine ounces of moss, costing two cents, will make a good dinner for six persons—which is evidence that his zeal outruns his discretion, inasmuch as an ounce and a half of food is not enough to make a substantial meal for a normal man or woman.

WESTON SPIRY AS A BOY.
Pedestrian's View of Walking—Incidents of His Early Life.

Bright as a button and twice as springy as the average youngster, that grand old man of the tanbark track, Major Edward Payson Weston, looked at as a two-year-old the other evening as he dressed for dinner in his room in the Fifth Avenue hotel at New York and chatted of his hundred mile walk from Philadelphia to New York, finished early in the morning, says the New York Press. If there was any chirper old man in the metropolis he was under cover. Major Weston, instead of being as weary as even old associates expected to find him, seemed ready to reel off another century at a moment's notice and certainly could have outwalked any man among his callers, though many of them were younger than he by many years. He is sixty-eight years old and has been a pedestrian since 1867.

Walking, he asserts, is a remedy for most of the ill-fishes gets by inheritance or otherwise, and if adopted generally would be a sure preventive of sickness. He is a walker of the heel and toe school and has a long record of six day races and other endurance tests. The major walked 5,000 miles in 100 days twenty-two years ago in England, and the Church Temperance society paid him $10,000 for demonstrating by that feat what a temperate man could do. He always has refused to take stimulants to increase his speed or staying power, and he thinks he is reaping the benefit of his abstemiousness in the shape of a groovy old age.

Major Weston had a hard time for seven miles of the 100 owing to the intense heat, but thirty-five minutes' sleep in New Brunswick made him all right again, and as he says, he "simply frolicked the rest of the way." Physicians accompanied him throughout the trip and weighed his food. Dr. Osler was not one of them. They were making a test of the effect of certain foods on human endurance, not in the interests of any proprietary preparation, for the gallant veteran walked for the advancement of science, without a penny of profit. He is an enthusiast on the beneficial results of regular pedestrian exercise and temperate living.

RAISING GOATS FOR POOR.
Chicago Woman's Plan of Furnishing Milk at Lowest Cost.

To develop an American milk goat that will be to the poor and to the farmers what similar animals are to the people of Switzerland and Spain is the fad which Mrs. Edward Roby of South Chicago is pursuing, says a special dispatch from Chicago to the Clarinet "Commercial Tribune. So far her work in this pioneer industry has been recognized by the agricultural department of the United States, and federal agents have visited her goat farm.

She was prompted to embark in this unusual work by a desire to see the infants of poor people well nourished. It is her idea to develop an American goat that will give a superior quality of milk and then to sell it at the cost of production.

Mrs. Roby's work goes even further. She has experimented in caring for the little animals, and she hopes to give directions for sanitary housing that will prevent contamination of the milk. It is held by some authorities that goats are immune from tuberculosis, and there is no evidence in the hands of the agricultural department to combat this theory. This, in Mrs. Roby's opinion, makes it more important than ever that the goat be developed here as it is abroad and become the poor man's cow.

She hopes in time to see the goat as common in America as it is in some foreign lands; where 75 per cent of the families are said to use goat's milk.

Goats never have been bred in the United States as milk producers, the extent of pasture lands encouraging the ownership of cows and the goat having become a joke. With the growth of population and the limitation of pastures the goat is receiving more attention.

VIOLET RAY FOR INSANE.
Hospital Superintendent Tells of Success With the Treatment.

Dr. N. W. Taylor, superintendent of the Illinois Western Hospital for the Insane, is convinced that violet rays are efficacious in the treatment of the insane, says a Chicago dispatch.

"I have constructed a house, roofed with violet-colored glass in which insane are placed to get the sun bathes that filter through the tinted panes," he says. "I have followed the experiment made by French and Danish scientists. The patients are placed in the inclosure without clothing and direct application made to the bare skin from sunrise to sunset. The rays are especially good in insanity due to nervous disorders. They have a soothing and sedative effect, and a number of patients have passed from a violent to a passive stage. They are improving all the time."

Reform by Surgery.
Surgery in Toledo, O., is doing what a long term in a house of correction would probably fail to do. The operation is being made on Joe Shopt with the object of changing the boy's wicked and vicious disposition to a normal one, says a Toledo dispatch. There is a disease of the membranes of the head which affects the brain, making Joe a thoroughly unmanageable boy. The first operation was highly successful and considerable diseased matter was removed. The physicians operating say his recovery is assured and believe that a complete change in the boy's disposition will result.

READ DISEASE FOR HORSES HAS BEEN DISCOVERED

LATE VETERINARIAN, ROBERTS MAKES DISCOVERY.

GLANDERS IN ROCK COUNTY

Horses Were Shipped Here Last Winter From the Dakotas—Many Cases Found.
State Veterinarian E. D. Roberts discovered the presence of the horse disease, glanders, among the horses. Today he and his assistants are scouring the region around Janesville, making a thorough investigation of all suspected animals in the hopes of stamping out the disease as soon as possible. Dr. Roberts and a Madison veterinarian are doing the same in the vicinity of Wausau and Madison.

Killed Fourteen
Dr. Roberts returned from Dane Station and Lodi late Saturday night, where he had killed fourteen head of young horses suffering from the glanders. He found that a carload of the same horses had been sold in Janesville during the winter and Sunday morning made an investigation of two horses belonging to Maurice Reed, south of the Blind Institute, which had been in the same lot, and found they were suffering from the disease and ordered them killed. He also has the names of thirty others that came from the same herd and they are being investigated today.

Where It Originated
In speaking of the epidemic, Dr. Roberts said: "Mike Kelly, a horse dealer at Dane Station, Dane County, last winter purchased several carloads of western horses from the Dakotas and shipped them into Wisconsin for sale. They were inspected by Dr. J. S. Kennedy, a veterinarian, at South St. Paul, and passed. I suppose that in the herd there may have been one animal that had contracted the disease and not yet fully developed it. Before they were sold, however, distemper broke out in the herd and many of the horses were treated for this. In fact, the Reed horses were being treated for distemper when I visited them yesterday. This fact probably concealed the real trouble for some time."

Called to Dane
Last week Mike Kelly asked me to examine his herd and upon going to Dane Station I found eight animals in an advanced stage of the disease and seven others which I quarantined. I also found six on the farm of Robert Gowan of Lodi and one in a livery stable, which I killed. I also found a car had been shipped and sold to Janesville people. I secured all the names of purchasers possible and inspected the suspected horses. Everything which will be done to prevent the spread of the disease, which is fatal to horses and mules, and large herds, as soon as they arrived in the state, is being taken.

First in Years
"Since the passing of the sanitary inspection law in 1903 this is the first year that has come into the state with the disease. If everyone who has purchased horses from this carload would notify me it would greatly facilitate matters and make it easier for me to go to work to stamp it out. Distemper does not hang on for months and that is one of the distinguishing features of the two diseases. Also distemper can be cured while no cure is known for glanders. I have a book four hundred years old that tells of glanders then and it is the same today. It is one disease no cure has been discovered for."

Disease of Glanders
"Glanders is, as its name signifies, a disease of the glands. These harden and abscesses form in the nostrils and all over the animal's body. It is very malignant and rapidly spreads through horses affected to others they come in contact with. The glands under the jaws swell and become very hard. Everything possible will be done to stamp out the disease at once."

The Croak Brewing Co. is said to have leased the place in question on condition that the application for a license is granted. Whether there are to be other protests cannot be learned.

BEAR INVESTIGATION IS AGAIN ADJOURNED

George Phillips Testified This Morning That Emsen Once Severely Bit One of His Fingers.

This forenoon the investigation by the fire and police commission into the conduct of Officer Bear in the arrest of Charles Emsen on the night of June 15 was resumed at the assembly chamber of the city hall. W. H. Macdonald testified to the officer's striking Emsen a blow on the head and said that he saw the man make no effort to strike and heard him utter no threats. A farmer, named Walker, from Shoreline testified that at least two blows were struck with the bludge. Thomas Cook said he saw Officer Bear strike two blows in swift succession and beat Emsen's head against the pavement. William Monroe said that Emsen had hold of Bear's club and that the latter had him clutched near the neck with both hands. George Phillips, former janitor and special policeman, testified that he was called upon to arrest Emsen for drunkenness on one occasion last fall and that after loading the man into a wagon and perching on his cargo to keep it down and in the said cargo got hold of one of his fingers with his teeth and bit it so badly that it bled and had to be bound in cloth for ten days. A. C. Thorpe, clerk of municipal court, gave the dates and particulars concerning five different occasions when Emsen was brought before Judge Fifield and fined for drunkenness. There was a spirited debate between the members of the board, City Attorney Maxfield, and Attorney Burpee regarding the propriety of admitting this evidence, Emsen not being on trial, but the lawyer for the defendant won his point. Dr. Charles Sutherland, who attended Emsen, being away on his wedding trip and having failed to give the patient permission to leave the hospital, it was deemed inexpedient to summon him and the hearing was adjourned until tomorrow morning. Dr. Sutherland being expected home by that time Emsen is getting along nicely. If he is unable to appear tomorrow the case will be adjourned two weeks.

CHESTER BAILEY IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

Was Prominently Connected With Cotton Mills Here—Remains Arrive Tomorrow.

Chester Bailey, formerly connected very prominently with the cotton spinning and weaving industry of Janesville, died at the home of his grandson, Walter R. Bailey, at 577 West Fifteenth street, Chicago, yesterday morning at four o'clock. He is survived by only his grandchildren, his wife and children having preceded him in death. His remains will be brought here over the North-Western road tomorrow at quarter of twelve and taken to Oak Hill to be laid beside his relatives. If the weather is fair funeral services will be held at the grave, but if inclement rains will be performed in the chapel.

The deceased was born in North Adams, Mass., September 30, 1821, and after an education in the common schools entered a cotton mill at the age of fourteen. He learned the weaver's trade and remained in that work until he retired some eight or nine years ago and removed from Janesville to Chicago. During his long service he filled nearly every kind of position in the industry. For fourteen years he was superintendent of the Arnold Mills in his native town and in the month of January, 1875, came to this city. He took charge of the operating department of the Janesville Cotton Manufacturing company, and remained in that capacity for many years. While attending to these duties he established a mill of his own, known as the Badger State Warp Mills, where warp and batting was manufactured. He was sole proprietor and the business aggregated $20,000 a year. He retained this property until he left the city, when the present owner, T. P. Burns, purchased the mill. Mr. Bailey was a foremost citizen and was ever highly esteemed by all with whom he had business or social relations.

Mr. Bailey was united in marriage with Miss Betsy E. Brown at Hoosic, N. Y., July 20, 1841. Of this union four children were born—Emmett C. Harriet, Emma and Alice. The three daughters died in infancy. Mrs. Bailey died in May, 1881, and Mr. Bailey was wedded again in December, 1882, his bride being Mrs. Maria Thurber.

James McCooley
After an illness extending over a period of two years James McCooley breathed his last at the home, 306 North street, Saturday evening at eight o'clock. Deceased was born in Ireland in 1836. He came to this country when a lad of fourteen years and in 1864 the town of Rock became his home. There he resided until failing health made it necessary for him to move to this city. His wife died twenty years ago. One brother and nine children survive him. The children are: Mrs. J. J. Bushfield; Rose, Dorothy, Katherine, Agnes, Nora, Theresa, Frank and Joseph McCooley, all of this city. The funeral was held from St. Patrick's church at 9:15 this morning. Dean E. M. McGinnity officiated and the pallbearers were John Hoffman, James Riley, Lawrence Cronin, James Sheridan, John Cogen and Maurice Holteran. Interment was in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Theodore Sorensen
The funeral of the late Mrs. Theodore Sorensen was held from the home, 50 Forest Park boulevard, Sunday afternoon, at 2:30. Rev. Kvale officiating. The pallbearers were: Peter Hammerlund, Torvald Hovland, Knute Gruneyher, Melvin Gunness, John Nelson, John Valentine. Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery.

DROWNED IN THE CHICAGO RIVER

MYSTERIOUS FATE OVERTOOK MICHAEL MOORE AT MIDNIGHT.

LEFT THIS CITY AT FIVE

O'clock Yesterday Afternoon and Was on His Way to Peoria—Had $1,200 Check With Him.

Some time after twelve o'clock last evening Michael Moore of Janesville, a man over sixty years of age who formerly followed the vocation of a drayman here, fell into the river at the east side of Monroe street, Chicago, and was drowned. Watchman Thomas Pidgeon, whose beat is in the vicinity of Market and Monroe streets, is said to have seen Moore shortly before one o'clock and to have warned him to be careful. The theory is advanced by the Chicago police that the Bower City man was frightened by the watchman's shout, believing him to be a robber, and in his effort to escape fell into the water. This explanation sounds much too simple to be plausible, but is perhaps correct.

Left Janesville Last Night
Mr. Moore's wife died some months ago and his adopted daughter, Josephine, did not live with him after that time. Recently he sold his property on Madison street for about $1,600 and went to live at the boarding-house kept by Mrs. Hannah Peters at No. 7 Pearl street. He purchased a railroad ticket to Peoria at the St. Paul depot about five o'clock last evening and departed on a train leaving about that time. In paying for his passage he exhibited a check for $1,200, drawn on the First National bank and made out to himself. It is believed to have been his intention to make his home permanently with Peoria relatives.

Deposit Book on Person
In all probability he was on his way to the depot when the accident, if it was an accident, occurred. The body was recovered soon after the drowning and the check for $1,200 as well as a deposit book showing $1,600 were in the pockets. The remains were taken to an undertaking establishment and telegrams were sent to this city. Besides the adopted daughter, Josephine, there is another Mrs. Merrill, still living in the city. There was some conspicuous defect in Mr. Moore's eyesight which was remarked and remembered by all with whom he came in contact when he was in the draying business and he was regarded as an odd character about town.

George Laird
George Laird, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Laird, died at the home of his parents, 402 Center avenue, yesterday after a protracted illness. Besides a father and mother three sisters and two brothers are left to mourn his demise. The funeral services will be from St. Patrick's church at nine o'clock tomorrow morning and burial will be in Monroe, the body being taken thither on the 10:45 train over the St. Paul Road.

A FOOL IN LOVE

By FRANCIS LYNN
AUTHOR OF "THE GRAY" AND "THE BROWN"

(Copyright, 1906, by J. P. Lyne, Virginia.)

"It is clear and frosty, a beautiful night," he hastened to say. "May I help you with your coat?"

She suffered him, but in the height of the heart-warming glow gave him a cold douche in a word to Bessie. "Won't you come, too, Bessie, dear?" she asked; and Winton sat the whole battery of his will at work to fend off the threatened calamity.

Happily, it averted itself. Miss Bessie was quite comfortable as she was and begged to be excused. Mrs. Carteret in her capacity of chaperon looked askance at Virginia, was met by a glance of the resolute brown eyes which she had come to obey without fully understanding, and contented herself with a monitory: "Don't stay out too long, Virginia. It is dreadfully cold."

So presently Winton had his heart's desire, which was to be alone with Virginia; alone, we say, though the privacy of the square railed platform was that of the ear only. For the gathering-room of the Rosemary, with its lights and eyes, gave directly upon the rear platform through the two full-length windows and the glass door.

Now in whatsoever aspect the mountain skyland presents itself—and its aspects are numberless—that of a starlit winter night, when the heavenly lights burn clear in a black dome for which the mighty peaks themselves are the visible supports, is not the least impressive. So, for a little time, awe challenging awe in these two had much in common, tongue and lip were silent, and when they spoke it was of the immensities.

"Does your profession often open such wide doors to you, Mr. Winton?" It gave him an exquisite thrill to know that her mood marched so evenly with his own.

"Outside of the office work, which I have always evaded when I could, the doors are all pretty wide. One year I was on the Mexican boundary survey—you can picture those silent nights in the desert. Another time I was with the Geodetic on the coast, since that winter the booming of the surf has been the constant undertone for me in all music."

"Ah, yes, in music. You must love music if you can associate it with this."

"I do, indeed. I would build it the grandest of the temples, though I should be only a mute lay-worshiper in it myself."

She smiled. "That temple must always have two high priests, one who prophesies and one who interprets. I can't play without a sympathetic listener."

"I wish you might play for me sometime. You would have to be very patient if you could find fault with my appreciation."

"We are riding away on my hobby," she said, "we had fairly mounted him."

He laughed. "Mine, is a very cart-horse, not fit for riding."

"You shouldn't say that. It is a man's work—yours." And he made sure there was a note of regret in her voice when she added: "No woman can ever share it with you, or help you in it."

"I should be sorry to believe that," he rejoined, quickly. "The best part of any man's work may be shared by the woman who wills and dares."

She gave him a flitting glance of intelligence. "How strangely chance whips us about from post to pillar. Two evenings ago I was, foolish enough to—well, you know what I did. And now we have changed places and you are telling me what a woman may do—if she dares."

But he would not admit the premises. "If the one were foolish, so is the other. But I can't allow that to stand. I shall always be the better for what you said to me the other evening."

"I don't know why you should; you didn't need it in the least," she protested. "If I had known then what I know now, I should have said something quite different."

"Say it now, if you wish."

"May I? But I have no right. Besides, it would sound like the basest of recantations."

"Would it? Nevertheless, I should like to hear it."

She nerved herself for the plunge—her uncle's plunge—doubting more than ever.

"Your part in the building of this other railroad is purely a business affair, is it not?"

"My personal interest? Quite so; a mere matter of dollars and cents, you may say."

She went on, entirely missing the irony in his reply.

"You did not know the difficulties before you came here?"

"Only in a general way. I knew there was opposition, and—well, I'm not just a novice in this sort of thing, and I may be allowed to boast a little. I knew my appointment was owing to Mr. Callowell's belief in my ability to carry it through."

"You are not smoking," she said. "Haven't you your pipe?"

"If you don't mind," he retorted, "but when he had pipe and tobacco in hand she plunged again."

"You say your interest in this other railroad—your personal interest—is only that of an employee. If you should have another offer, from some other company—" place, Virginia. What would you do, think it out—and in the doubt grew and overwhelmed her. "I don't know," she faltered. "It is only a question of some day if she struck him."

Then your argument, it is that Mr. Darrah's voice took a deep cry out. "Don't say you think I have been putting you down."

Miss Carteret, however, was not to be trifled with. "You know well enough, Winton, that I am not a fool."

Winton, I was only testing you. I was only testing you."

of the day, that is, I was not believe you would sacrifice me of any-man's eyes met his fairly, and Mr. Somerville Darrah's came. "Indeed, I do not know if it would be for you to be so short, and leaving the air, began again."

But only fair that you should have said, and then going to give you. My uncle will leave me, and I shall be free."

He looked into her eyes, and she looked into his. "I shall be free, but I shall always be his. This evening, do you understand?"

She smiled. "I shall be free, but I shall always be his. This evening, do you understand?"

She smiled. "I shall be free, but I shall always be his. This evening, do you understand?"

I've met her only twice, yet I venture to say I know her better than you do. If she cared anything for me—which she doesn't—

"Oh, go to sleep!" said Adams, who was not minded to argue further with a man besotted; and so the matter went by default for the time.

But in the days that followed, days in which the sun rose and set in cloudless winter splendor and the heavy snows still held aloof, Adams' prediction wrought itself out into sober fact. After the single appeal to force, Mr. Darrah seemed to have given up the fight. None the less, the departure of the Rosemary was delayed, and its hospitable door was always open to the Utah chief of construction and his assistant.

It was very daffily done, and even Adams, the clear-eyed, could not help admitting the Rajah's skillful finesse. Of formal dinner-givings there might easily have been an end, since the construction camp had nothing to offer in return. But the formalities were studiously ignored, and the two young men were put upon a footing of intimacy and encouraged to come and go as they pleased.

Winton took his welcome broadly, as what lover would not; and within a week was spending most of his evenings in the Rosemary—this at a time when every waking moment of the day and night was deeply mortgaged to the chance of success. For now that the Rajah had withdrawn his opposition, nature and the pervasiveness of inanimate things had taken a hand, and for a fortnight the work of tracklaying, paused fairly within sight of the station at Argentine.

First it was a carload of steel accidentally derailed and dumped into Quartz creek at precisely the worst possible point in the lower canyon, a jagged, rock-ribbed, cliff-bound gorge where each separate piece of metal had to be hoisted out singly by a derrick erected for the purpose—a process which effectually blocked the track for three entire days. Next it was another landslide (unhelped by dynamite, this) just above the station, a crawling cataract of loose, sliding shale which, painstakingly dug out and dammed with plank bulkhead during the day, would pour down and bury bulkhead, buttresses, and the very right of way in the night.

In his right mind—the mind of an ambitious young captain of industry who sees defeat with dishonor staring him in the face—Winton would have fought all the more desperately for these hindrances. But, unfortunately, he was no longer an industry captain with an eye single to success. He was become that anomaly despised of the working world—a man in love.

"It's no use shutting our eyes to the fact, Jack," said Adams one evening when his chief was making ready for his regular descent upon the Rosemary. "We shall have to put right shifts at work on that shale-slide if we hope ever to get past it with the rails."

"Hang the shale!" was the impatient rejoinder. "I'm no galley slave. Adams' slow smile came and went in cynical ripplings.

"It is pretty difficult to say precisely what you are just now. But I can prophesy what you are going to be if you don't wake up and come alive."

Having no reply to this, Adams went back to the matter of night shifts.

"If you will authorize it, I'll put a night gang on and boss it myself. What do you say?"

"I say you are no end of a good fellow, Morty. And that's the plain fact. I'll do as much for you some time."

CHASM EASILY BRIDGED OVER.

Long-Time Enemies Fond of Quarreling, but Shunned "Scrap."

One evening when the mail arrived at Barboursville by stage there was the usual move on the part of the crowd of idlers to enter the postoffice. It so happened that Jones, the village cooper, jostled White, the village cobbler, and they turned upon each other with:

"What're you pushin' fur, Tom Jones?"

"Who's a-pushin', Bill White?"

"You are."

"No, I ain't."

"Then, I'm a liar!"

"Then you be!"

"Then I can lick two such pumpkin heads as you!"

"Then I dare you to lay a hand on me!"

There was hope that they would fight, but nothing of the kind took place. Next evening they had the scrap over again, and so on the next, and by and by it came to be a regular thing. Every week day evening for long years they had a war of words, and there was little variation. Then the people of the town became discouraged, and one evening, as the two men were going through the usual program, they were suddenly pushed together. White accidentally stuck a finger in Jones' eye, and Jones kicked at a dog and landed on White's shin. It was a golden opportunity for the long deferred battle to go on, and for a few seconds the crowd held its breath. Then the two men turned and fled from each other, one going up the street and the other down, and when they met three days later, Jones held out his hand and said:

"Bill, I ain't mad at you and never was."

"Tom," replied Bill, as he reached for the hand. "I ain't mad at you, neither, and let's go fishin' to-morrow together!"—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Put Rembrandt in the Shade.

Dudley Hardy, London's artist, says he admires American art and likes some American artists—but not all. When asked to say more than this, he tells a story to show which kind he does not like. Here it is:

"It was at Etaples, and there were two of them at the table next mine—two quite pretty girls, they were—and they talked Art at the top of their voices. First it was Titian. He failed to find approval for anything. Then it was Velasquez. He was worse than Titian, if possible. Then it was Rembrandt, and for a moment I thought he was going to be indorsed. But it was only partial."

"Rembrandt's all slick enough sometimes," admitted one of the ladies, "but you jes' ought to see the jolly sketch I did this mornin'!"

"I swallowed my soup the wrong way and fled," adds Mr. Hardy.

Nothing in It.

"Remember," said the serious friend, "that you are a servant of the people."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "The trouble is that nowadays you are expected to serve the people without accepting any tips."—Washington Star.

STORIES ABOUT IBSEN

Norwegian Author's Felling of a Reporter's Snapshot.

UNIQUE TEST OF HIS PATIENCE

Novel Experience While Wooling the Beautiful Woman Who Became His Wife—An Instance of the Dramatist's Wrathful but Yet Forgiving Moods Related by George Brandes.

A good story about one of the photographs of the late Henrik Ibsen, the Norwegian author and dramatist, which appeared in the Christmas number of a Swedish magazine, is told as follows in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. It was the result of a snapshot taken by a Swedish newspaper man who visited Christiania in the summer of 1899 for the purpose of catching the great man's likeness, unawares. He chose a favorable day for the execution of his coup, placed himself in an advantageous position not far from the entrance to the Grand cafe and waited. Ibsen was punctual to the minute, and soon the miscreant noticed with a thrill of joy that he had focused the figure of his victim. But he was intent on getting the best possible view and postponed, therefore, the consummation of the deed until Ibsen was only a few steps away from him. Then he pressed the button and walked away with triumphant steps.

The disillusionment did not take place until he had developed the negative, which proved a splendid success in every way but one. The whole well known figure from the silk hat down to the broad nosed shoes was there, but a bunch of paper held up by the poet's right arm was all that could be seen where the face should have been. The keen eye of Ibsen had apparently seen the lurking danger to good time. He had followed the movements of the enemy with the alertness of a threatened animal and at the critical moment had interposed the paper—some manuscript presumably—between his features and the detested instrument. The photograph was reproduced and published just the same, and it is to be suspected that the readers of the magazine enjoyed it much more than they would have done if it had been more successful from the photographer's point of view. They all recognized the lion in his bushy white mane, which the envious paper had been unable to hide from view.

When Ibsen fell in love with the beautiful daughter of Pastor Thoresen how to make known the fact to her troubled him for weeks, says the Rural Collaborator. At last he resolved to write to her. He would come and fetch his answer the same afternoon at 5. Did the lady accept him she would be "at home," otherwise not.

At 5 o'clock he presented himself, and the maid asked him into the best room. He was very hopeful, but when he had waited half an hour awful doubts began to assail him. Still he waited on. After two hours he began to be ashamed of himself. At last he jumped up in rage and ran to the door. He was opening it when a loud peal of laughter arrested him. He turned and saw the fair head of his adored emerge from under the sofa.

Her mouth was laughing, but her eyes were filled with tears. "Oh, you dear, good fellow, to wait all this while," she said. "I wanted to see how many minutes a lover's patience lasts. How hard the floor is! Now, help me to get out, and then we will talk." In less than a week a marriage was arranged.

Here is a story illustrative of Ibsen's wrathful but yet forgiving moods:

Some years ago George Brandes, the Danish author, was endeavoring to raise funds for the erection of a monument to the deceased Danish author Jacobson. He begged Ibsen to head the list of signers, saying that his name and only his would touch the hearts and pockets of the citizens of Copenhagen, says the Philadelphia Press. This flattering suggestion was lost on the impressive poet.

"What others will sign?" he asked.

"All our prominent authors."

"Who are they?"

"Surely you know," replied Brandes, but he was compelled to repeat the names.

"Well, who else?"

"The Swedish writers."

"For instance?"

Brandes told him.

"Next?"

"The Norwegians."

"Names, please."

With a sigh of resignation Brandes went through the list. When he came to the name of August Strindberg, Ibsen sprang up in a rage.

"I will not sign," he exclaimed.

"And why not, for heaven's sake?"

"He ridiculed my 'Nora'."

In vain did Brandes strive to explain that Strindberg's ridicule had been directed not against "Nora," but against some silly women who had entirely misconstrued Ibsen's meaning. In vain did he offer to dispense with Strindberg's signature. The old poet remained inflexible. The mere suggestion of Strindberg had wounded him sorely.

The subscription was abandoned.

Some years later Brandes visited Ibsen in Christiania. In the poet's study over his desk hung a life size portrait of Strindberg.

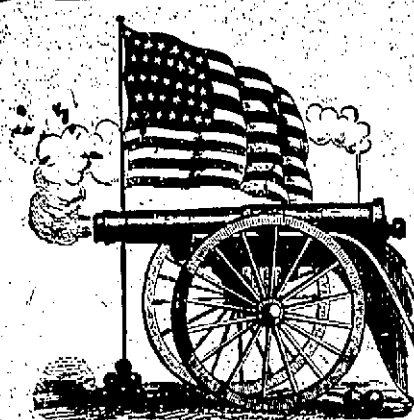

"So you have forgiven him," said Brandes.

"Whom?" said Ibsen.

"He had forgotten and could recall only after an effort the hatred that he had felt for the young writer only a few years before."

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

John Got It Twice, and from a Cloudless Sky, Consequently Was Indignant.

It frequently happens that, during severe storms the wires of the different public service corporations, such as electric light, electric street railway, telephone and telegraph companies, become entangled at different points, and consequently the wires utilized for carrying but light currents become charged with the much heavier and dangerous currents.

To this condition serious accidents are sometimes due; again, ludicrous conditions arise where no particular harm is done, except to the feelings of the participants.

Some years ago such a storm swept over the territory between Boston and Portland, Me., and after some hours of duration, had mixed matters generally. The following day was bright and clear, and the work of clearing up began.

An old-time telephone lineman was started from Portland to connect the long-distance wires to Boston, which were unknown to him, twisted up with electric wires in the city of Portland. After driving out some miles this man saw the wires broken down, and prepared to connect them. At the first attempt to handle them he was knocked down. Being somewhat unfamiliar with such conditions, he tried again, with the same result.

He at once drove back to Portland and reported at the office, where the following conversation took place:

"Well, John, did you get your trouble?"

"Trouble be d—," said John. "I was struck twice by lightning, and not a cloud in the sky."

ABOUT NATURAL BRIDGES.

Their Formation as Accounted For by Scientific Investigators.

It is commonly believed that natural bridges, of which the Natural Bridge of Virginia is the best known American example, are due to the falling in of cavern roofs, leaving only a part to span the stream which the destruction of the cavern has brought to the surface.

By a study of the North Adams Natural Bridge, says the Geographical Record, Prof. Cleland has been led to the conclusion that in this case at least the origin is quite different. In this case the bridge seems to be due to the solution of the limestone along a joint plane near the former course of Hudson brook. At first only a small amount of water seeped along the joint plane, but after awhile it made a channel large enough to divert the entire brook under the surface, giving rise to the bridge.

Walcott had previously offered a similar theory for the Natural Bridge of Virginia, and Cleland concludes that while the falling in of cavern roofs may occasionally give rise to natural bridges, the most common cause for such bridges in marble, limestone, sandstone and lava is that outlined above.

RUSSIAN DUEL BY SUICIDE.

Loser in a Game of Cards for Life Is Compelled to Kill Himself.

A tragedy, romantic on the surface but in reality throwing a repulsive light on the hollowness of life in Russia, is reported from Moscow.

Two young Poles named Nidetzki and Komorovsky, attending a ball given by Count Feodorov, were both given by the beauty of the count's daughter that, though friends from boyhood, they at once became deadly enemies and before the ball was half over had determined upon a duel to the death by that most strange, but most deadly of all methods—the suicide of one of the combatants. It was decided that the loser of a game of cards should kill himself, and toward the end of the ball the infuriated pair went to the card room for their game at death. In a few minutes Komorovsky had lost, and, quietly drawing a revolver, he shot himself through the heart. Nidetzki took the first express for Berlin.

As for the fair cause of the tragedy, she was so little impressed that with in a few days she had accepted a proposal from a Russian nobleman.

Medical Journalism.

The medical editor of one of the New York dailies used often to say that medical journalism was played out, for a journal published only once a week or once a month could never compete with the daily papers, at best it could only republish in more elaborate if less sensational style what the lay press had printed days before. In illustration of this view may be mentioned a tremendous "beat" scored recently by a New York daily. This enterprising journal published an interesting and circumstantial account of an operation for renal calculus, performed at one of the hospitals by a well-known surgeon of this city. All the details of the operation were graphically and, as it appeared the next day, quite accurately described. The point of special interest in the article was that the operation, which it described was not performed until about 12 hours after the article had been published.—Medical Record.

...THE... "GREAT INTRODUCERS"

In a street crowd, a week ago, four men "rubbed elbows." All were in a hurry—they were not acquainted with each other—they never saw each other before—and, in a few seconds, each had forgotten the existence of the other three. One lived in the northern end of the city—one in the southern, one in the eastern and the other in the western.

But, within one week from the time these strangers "rubbed elbows," these things have happened:

No. 1 buys a house from No. 2.

No. 2 buys a Plot from No. 3.

No. 3 buys a Piano from No. 4.

No. 4 buys a Horse from No. 1.

No. 1 buys a Book case from No. 3.

No. 2 buys an Automobile from No. 4.

Each man has found three valuable acquaintances—each has taken part in three business transactions—6 want ads. have introduced these four men, each to every other, and negotiated six business deals.

Thus—every week, in all parts of the city—the want ads. are "bringing people together"—influencing and negotiating business deals of all sorts, from the exchange of a book for a cane, to the exchange of a store in the city for a farm in the country.
